To the Reader.

THE Collection of the following Tables being first of all made for the private use of some Gentlemen, before they were published, many Errors were slip't into the first Edition either by Inadvertency, or for want of due Information, which have been carefully Corrected in this. And, it being obvious, that in 7 or 8 Years time; (for so long it is since the first Edition was published,) there must needs happen considerable Alterations in various Respects,

To the Reader.

among the Families of the several Princes, mention'd in the ensuing Tables, the same have been inserted with all the exactness imaginable, as well as those left out in the two former Editions. The Present French King is a Prince, who had render'd His Name Famous by many Great Atchievements; He met with no small opposition at the beginning of his Reign, from some of the Princes of the Blood, headed by the old Duke of Conde, which intestine Commotions, being happily appeas'd, he carried the Terror of his Arms among his Neighbours; The first that felt the Effects of it, were the Spaniards; which War was brought to a Conclusion by the Pyrenean Treaty.

The Dutch he reduced to such a Distress in the Year 1672, that, if by the unparallel'd Conduct of His Present Majesty of Great-Britain, William III. he had not been check'd in his Stupendious Progresses, he had without question put a Period to the Glory of that flourishing Commonwealth.

Since that time he has been engaged in a heavy War against the Confederacy, headed by His Britannick Majesty, which he car-

carried on with great Bravery on his Side, but by vertue of the Peace made in the Year 1697. at Reswick in Holland, was obliged to restore many of his Conquests made, both in this and the former Wars.

He is a Prince both dreaded and revered by his Subjects, who give him this Encomium; that he has carried the Military Affairs of France to the highest pitch, and increas'd their Maritime strength beyond what could have been expected; But it is confess'd on all hands that the Persecution begun and continued against his Protestant Subjects, under his Reign, will Eclipse the Glory of his Great Actions.

He was a Prince, who by his great Bravery, shewn in several Engagements against the Infidels, before his Accession to the Throne, was thought the worthiest Person to fill it. The Share he had in the Relief of Vienna, as it made him Famous throughout all Europe, so it made him dreaded by the Turks; notwithstanding which he did not undertake any thing of moment afterwards against

gainst them, being more intent upon the raising of his Family than the Prosecution of the War; which so exasperated the Poles, that at the next Election, they set aside his Eldest Son Prince James, and Elected Frederick Augustus, Elector of Saxony, King of Poland.
